For renewable energy

I would just like to take a moment to praise the Utah Legislature for passing the sales-tax exemption for renewable energy. This makes Utah the 15th state to pass similar legislation, and I feel that it is always better late than never.

Now that awareness has been raised, I hope that the voters of Utah will realize the importance of bringing clean energy production to the state. Many of our neighboring states have passed RPS (Renewable Production Standard) legislation that has required them to actually develop clean electricity production in their states, which is why most of the clean energy in Utah comes from other states.

Congratulate our legislators and tell them we are all in favor of an RPS.
